Emergency Aid: Gaza Under Attack

The Palestinian Feminist Collective stands with our people in Palestine and seeks to support their steadfastness. In partnering with Middle East Children's Alliance (MECA), the PFC upholds our collective and communal responsibility to sustain the basic survival and sumud, courage, creativity, hope, love, selflessness, and determination necessary to realize liberation. Please consider giving to our fundraiser which will support families directly displaced as a result of this assault on Gaza. We are raising funds for food, medicine, and women's hygiene products.

Rest in Power Heba Zagout

By now, many have heard the devastating news that one of our featured artists in the PFC's 2023 Feminist Futures Calendar, Heba Zagout, has been killed by an Israeli airstrike along with her three children. Heba is a treasured member of the PFC community and her loss adds on to the layers of grief we are enduring as we mourn our loved ones in Palestine. When we set out to create the Palestinian Feminist Futures Calendar and Program, we understood that Palestinians have long been denied the right to grieve, create, envision, and dream because of Zionism's long genocidal war on Palestinian life. This genocide, which has suspended the remainder of our feminist futures programming, reminds us that there resides a present for which a different future must be made. We honor Heba's life and legacy, alongside the thousands of martyrs taken from us, by continuing to mobilize, educate, and agitate. We will not stop until this genocide ends and Palestinians attain their liberation and return.

THE GENOCIDE IN PALESTINE

We are currently witnessing all the forces of empire mobilize against the Palestinian people, and our steadfast struggle for freedom. The genocide in the Gaza Strip is a continuation of a concerted campaign the Zionist settler colonial regime has been waging against Palestinian bodies, land, and culture for nearly a century. In just the first six days of this assault, Israeli Occupation Forces dropped more than 6,000 bombs on Palestinians in Gaza—amounting in strength to one quarter of a nuclear bomb. The relentless aerial bombardment has targeted all life, killing more than 7,000 Palestinians, including close to 3,000 children.

As of October 27th, more than 22,000 Palestinians have sustained life-threatening injuries. Palestinian hospitals are facing dire shortages in medical supplies, bed-space, personnel, and fuel, and a shortage in body bags only deepens the grief and torment of families who are being deprived of the solace and space to bury their loved ones in peace. Thousands of Palestinians remain trapped under the rubble of destroyed buildings, and at least 47 families have literally been erased from Gaza's civil registry.

These airstrikes deliberately target vital infrastructure and safe spaces, including churches, mosques, United Nations shelters, universities, schools, residential towers, hospitals, ambulances, farmlands, grocers, and essential water, sewage, and electrical systems. On October 17, the Israeli regime launched an airstrike on the Al Ahli Baptist Hospital, killing over 500 Palestinians who were receiving life-saving treatment among countless others who were seeking refuge. Meanwhile, Israeli Occupation Forces continue to threaten Gaza's remaining hospitals, where thousands more seek life-sustaining medical attention and shelter.

With a greenlight from its international allies, the Israeli regime has been blockading the passage of life-sustaining food, water, fuel, and medical supplies into Gaza's Rafah border crossing with Egypt, further intensifying its 17-year siege. Since October 7th, more than half of all Palestinian homes have been destroyed and more than 1.4 million Palestinians have been displaced. For some, this exodus marks the sixth forced displacement in seventeen years and the ninth since the 1948 Nakba.

The genocide in Gaza is unfolding alongside unrelenting colonial violence and repression in the occupied West Bank, Jerusalem, and in "heartland Palestine"—lands occupied in 1948. In the last two weeks, nearly 500 Palestinians from Gaza with permits to work inside heartland Palestine had their permits revoked and were rounded up and are being detained in a military detention facility in Jericho.

Meanwhile, the mass arrest across the West Bank of 5,000 Palestinians protesting the genocide in Gaza—in some cases for merely making social media posts—has doubled the Palestinian prisoner population. There are also reports that prison guards are enacting collective punishment upon imprisoned Palestinians, including through the use of torture.

Palestinians in the heartland are being subjected to draconian policies of silencing by being warned that their homes and properties will be seized and their professional licenses will be revoked by the Israeli regime for opposing its genocidal assault on their kin in Gaza. Across the West Bank, Israeli Occupation Forces have killed approximately one hundred Palestinians, while mobs of armed settlers continue to attack numerous Palestinian youth with impunity. Just days ago, Israeli Occupation Forces launched an airstrike on Jenin refugee camp, which is still recovering and rebuilding from an Israeli bombing campaign that took place in July.

The genocide is being aided and abetted by the U.S. and other imperialist powers. Since the start of the onslaught, the U.S. has increased its military aid to the Zionist regime—which had already topped $3 billion annually—and has fast tracked a large shipment of weapons and warships to support efforts to annihilate the Palestinians. Moreover, reports that the U.S. has boots on the ground that are stationed across West Bank checkpoints abound. The United States' unwavering support for the Israeli regime and participation in this genocide threatens a broader regional and global catastrophe on Palestinian land.

Beyond their material support for state-sanctioned violence, Western politicians are beating the drums of war as they defend the Israeli regime's genocide of Palestinians. Western politicians and the media establishment are spreading false claims that dehumanize Palestinians as a mechanism to excuse our extermination. When the Israeli regime's defense minister, Yoav Gallant, called Palestinians "human animals" and U.S. politicians, such as Nikki Haley, made comments like, "finish them, Netanyahu," Palestinians paid with their lives. When Joe Biden repeated fake reports that Palestinians decapitated forty Israeli babies (published by major news outlets and then retracted), his words served the same function as Bush's lie that Iraq possessed weapons of mass destruction and was part of an "axis-of-evil." This language once enabled the slaughter of millions of Iraqis and Afghans and it is this same "media playbook" that is now being utilized against Palestinians, enabling the systematic murder of thousands and a surge of anti-Palestinian, anti-Arab, and anti-Muslim racist violence across the world. On October 21, six-year-old Wadea al Fayoume was stabbed to death by his Zionist landlord in Illinois and since then, hundreds of Palestinian Americans have reported violent hate crimes. We hold all those who have spread these lies accountable.

This utter lack of journalistic integrity reflects decades of systematic attacks on the truth about Palestine's anti-colonial struggle for liberation. Social media platforms continue to distort the truth by censoring, shadow-banning, and suspending accounts on their platforms of thousands of global voices opposing the Israeli regime's bombardment. It is also no accident that the Israeli regime destroyed major media offices in Gaza in the first three days of its assault, or that it has killed at least 23 Gaza-based journalists, who put their lives on the line to report the truth. Media black-outs and distortions must end today.

As Palestinian feminists, we are steadfast in our condemnation of the genocide of our kin in Gaza. We call for an immediate ceasefire and an end to the siege in Gaza and to the occupation of all Palestinian lands. We demand that all Palestinian refugees, whether in Gaza, the West Bank, or globally in exile, return to our homeland. We build upon the long tradition of anti-imperialist and anti-war feminist movements that have mobilized to end colonial violence and demanded accountability from all perpetrators of war, violence, and oppression. We reject the instrumentalization of colonial feminist rhetoric, which portrays Palestinian men as barbaric savages, women as helpless victims who need saving from their culture and religion, and children as "human shields" and "collateral damage." We call upon all our communities and co-strugglers to take immediate action: to get informed, to spread awareness, to speak out and up, to organize, mobilize, and to commit to standing on the right side of history. This toolkit is an offering and invitation to all lovers of freedom to join or deepen your engagement in the struggle for Palestinian liberation at this critical moment.

End The Deadly Exchange

Both the US and Israeli governments perpetuate the deadly falsehood that violence against some communities will create security for others. The exchanges bring together police, ICE, border patrol, and FBI from the US with soldiers, police, border agents, etc. from Israel. In these programs, "worst practices" are shared to promote and extend discriminatory and repressive policing practices that already exist in both countries, including racial profiling, massive spying and surveillance, deportation and detention, and attacks on human rights defenders. As we come out to stand against colonial violence and genocide, our movements are being debilitated by the continued harassment, disrespect, and dismissal of women, femmes, and genderqueer organizers. Any movement for liberation must include an end to gender-based violence.

Harm at protests has looked like:

- Having mics taken away
- Being spoken over
- Being groped or touched without consent
- Being aggressively shoved out of the way
- Stalking key organizers after protests

For More:
For the Binat Protest Safety Guide

Having mics taken away.

Key speakers who are leading the actions are violently having their mics taken away by cis* men for messaging and chants that are not aligned with the organized action's values.

* cis refers to when gender identity matches sex assigned at birth.

Being spoken over.

"As the organizers of this march we've planned this march to go this way"

"We have spent days organizing this march, we are supposed to do it this way"

"No, we are going to do what we want and don't care what you women think"

This harm occurs when we see cis* men erasing the leadership and voices of the women, femmes and genderqueer individuals who have put in labor to create the space. This is misogyny and bad adab.
* cis refers to when gender identity matches sex assigned at birth.

Being groped or touched without consent.

con•sent /kun-sent/noun

actively giving permission to do something at a specific time. Consent can be revoked at any time for any reason. Not respecting consent is sexual violence.

Being aggressively shoved out of the way

DO NOT PUSH

Cis* and cis-passing men physically assaulting people by pushing and shoving them out of their way. This is an extension of male entitlement and is violence.

*cis refers to when gender identity matches sex assigned at birth.

Stalking key organizers after protests

Hey, I saw you at the protest up on the mic and think you're pretty = I'm crossing a boundary and using your information to violate your personal space for non-professional reasons.

SAFETY AT ACTIONS FOR ALL

Keeping each other safe at protests: No More Misogyny

Know Your Rights And Report Racist Violence, Harrassment, Discrimination and Retaliation To the Orgs Below!

Throughout history, Palestinians in the U.S. and their co-strugglers have been punished, criminalized, silenced, and suppressed for advocating for justice and freedom in and for Palestine. These attacks have intensified in the last decade. They include the passing of legislation that violates First Amendment rights to boycott and the criminalization of free speech and academic freedom. Universities, politicians, and big tech social media companies such as Zoom, Facebook, Instagram, Eventbrite, Venmo, and YouTube have all been complicit in silencing voices of dissent. Since October 7th, 2023, there has been a surge of anti-Palestinian, anti-Arab, and anti-Muslim racist violence, harrassment, stalking, doxing, retaliation by employers, and government surveillance.

It is often difficult to talk about Palestine, especially in our workplace settings. Palestinians and their co-strugglers have for too long been silenced, vilified, and criminalized for countering dominant narratives in all sectors of U.S. institutional life. There has been a concerted and ongoing effort for decades to equate anti-Zionism and/or any critique of the Israeli regime with antisemitism. Palestinians have made clear, time and again, that critiques of Zionism as an ideology, and of Israeli settler colonialism, are not the same as anti-Semitism, and that a large component of the movement for Palestinian liberation includes Jews rejecting Zionism as a decolonial expression of Jewish identity.

Advocates for justice in Palestine have long been racially demonized as so-called "terrorist sympathizers," a colonial rhetoric which works to stifle debate and legitimize state-sanctioned violence, surveillance, imprisonment, and detention of anyone opposing Israeli settler colonial violence. These forms of suppressing free speech have been persistent across generations, are accompanied by colossal consequences for one's own professional, economic, physical, and mental health wellness, and have only intensified in the last decade as the movement for Palestinian liberation has gained power and influence.

In the last three weeks, advocates for Palestine who are speaking out about the genocide in Gaza are facing an unprecedented amount of anti-Palestinian, anti-Arab, and anti-Muslim racism, including horrible acts of violence and countless efforts to criminalize dissent. Many have reported that they have been terminated from their jobs, have had employment contracts rescinded, or have been punished by their supervisors. Thousands of government institutions and private companies across the world have issued statements that condemn violence against Jewish communities while permitting and justifying genocide against Palestinians and racial animosity toward Palestinians in diaspora.

It is very important to speak out in our professional settings, not only because of our responsibility towards the Palestinian people struggling for liberation, but also because when we do, we are able to protect more people taking action and open space for others to do the same. It is a moral and ethical right and responsibility to fight censorship including in our professional settings. Though speaking out may come with risk, we encourage our communities to get informed on your rights and demonstrate courage at this crucial time.

1 Speak Up! Why Now?

In 2021, Palestinians throughout historic Palestine, from the Jordan River to the Mediterranean Sea, rose up together in what was named the Unity Intifada. As Palestinians placed their bodies and homes on the line to end 73 years of colonialism, apartheid, dispossession, and occupation, they called on their Palestinian siblings in the diaspora and co-strugglers to do our part by Speaking Up! As Mohammed al-Kurd had stated: "it is difficult to have the conversation, but it is more difficult to live under occupation." While the 2021 moment was initially regarded as one of immense hope and dignity, in the two years that followed, Palestinians were violently punished for daring to dream freedom and acting to attain it. Palestinians across Palestine were beaten, imprisoned, brutalized, and continuously had their lands and homes taken and their sacred sites desecrated. The siege on Gaza and the Occupation of the West Bank became even more egregious denying Palestinians the very right to life. Prior to October 7, 2023, 2022 and 2023 were already the deadliest years for Palestinians in the West Bank since the second Intifada. In the diaspora, Palestinians have been confronting McCarthyist policies that suspend their right to speak and act against this injustice. The current violence we are witnessing did not begin on October 7, 2023, but stems from over 100 years of colonialism, 75 years of conquest, 56 years of military occupation, 17 years of siege in the Gaza Strip, and two years of increased Zionist violence targeting Palestinian land and life. Palestinians are denied their right to life and freedom, and it is time for justice to be delivered. The genocide in Gaza has already been the bloodiest we have seen, and it threatens to evolve into a full-fledged massacre and a permanent expulsion of Gaza's 2.3 million inhabitants. Not only must this genocide end now, but Palestine must finally be freed.

2 How To Talk About Palestine In Your Workplace

The Forum To Have The Conversation

- Many corporations have a centralized discussion board on which employees can post messages to generate a conversation or to share resources on how people can learn more or take action.
- For smaller workplace environments, a staff meeting or interpersonal discussion with your supervisor might make most sense.
- An email message to co-workers can also be appropriate.
- You can organize an online discussion forum off company hours and invite your co-workers to attend so you can share these thoughts.
- Interpersonal chats in break rooms, or on the phone are also tremendously meaningful.
- Another option is to create a space to openly share and engage in discussions in the workplace with the purpose of bringing people together to talk about issues and topics that are important and/or interesting to them.

Knowing Your Audience

- Before crafting your message, reflect on your audience.
- What sort of workplace environment are you a part of?
- What are the values of your team?
- How can you make a connection with your co-workers in a way that can help make them feel that the Palestinian cause matters to them and that they are also stakeholders in Palestinian freedom?
- Do you have colleagues that support the Palestinian cause or identify as solidarity activists?
- Do you have colleagues that might not know much about Palestine but are angry about the racist rhetoric and dehumanization of Palestinians, Arabs, and Muslims?

Knowing Your Audience Examples

If you work in a media or tech company: you can start the conversation by speaking out against corporate suppression of free speech, or discuss how in fact tech is not neutral and what responsibilities tech workers have in these moments. Find details of this suppression here.

The lack of journalistic integrity through the spreading of unverified reports and manufactured lies has in part enabled this current genocide in Gaza. Point that out and force your colleagues to reflect on their professional responsibility. For talking points on how Western journalists are complicit in this genocide see here.

If you work in education: you can start the conversation by talking about the importance of free intellectual exchange of ideas and experiences, or talk about the difficulties Palestinians educators and students face just trying to teach/learn. See examples of how teachers unions are mobilizing for freedom and justice in Palestine here.

If you work in a job dedicated to social, climate, disability, racial, economic, housing, sexual, gendered, or other forms of justice: you can draw a direct correlation between your workplace values and how that specific form of injustice is unfolding in Palestine. Find resources in this toolkit and at United States Campaign for Palestinian Rights.

If you work in faith and interfaith communities and coalitions: it is critical to challenge the normalization of Zionism in these spaces by centering acknowledgements of unequal power and principles of justice and freedom as core to any meaningful dialogues. It is also important to address the impact of Christian Zionism in enabling the colonization of Palestine. For more on faith-based solidarity with Palestine see Kairos Palestine: A Moment of Truth's statement of solidarity.

If you work in the food industry: talk about Palestinian cuisine, the various ways Palestinian culture is appropriated and stolen, and how natural foods indigenous to Palestine are threatened by Israeli attacks on agricultural production and access. Learn more about Palestinian cuisine here and more about Israeli theft of Palestinian foods here.

If you work in a job that has promoted values of democratic engagement, inclusion, and/or diversity: you can talk about this as a Palestinian and/or an advocate for Palestine and why it matters to you. It is important to challenge all of our colleagues who are otherwise progressive on other issues except for Palestine. Learn more here.

If you work in the legal field: you can discuss the calls to end normalization agreements with Israel until it complies with international law and how what is happening is a violation of human rights here. You can also demonstrate how what is currently happening violates the 1949 UN Genocide Convention and civil liberties of Palestinians in the US. See the American Muslim Bar Associations urgent appeal to the legal community here.

If you work in a job where your employers have direct ties with Israeli companies or public institutions: you can make them aware that there is a global movement for the boycott of Israel that parallels the movements to boycott apartheid in South Africa, and sway them toward institutional responsibility by ending complicity. Learn more here.

If you work in the medical field: you can talk about the ethical responsibility of medical practitioners to account for war-manufactured injury, disease, mortality rates, and the prohibition of access to medical care. The denial of emergency humanitarian assistance and specific bombing of hospitals in Gaza are important things to discuss regarding the current situation. See an example of health worker solidarity with Palestine here.

If you work in a labor union: you can discuss the boycott, divestment, sanctions movement (BDS) and call for your union to participate. This can take place in many ways including establishing picket lines and passing union resolutions. You can reference the history of organized labor solidarity with Palestine, including boycott efforts by various locales of UAW in the 1970's and in 2014 as well as ILWU Longshoremen's victorious refusal to unload the Israeli Zim Line Ship. Learn more about labor solidarity here. Ask you union to join other organized labor efforts to end this genocide and siege on Gaza and free Palestine. For support, contact labor for Palestine. See statements from US labor calling for a ceasefire in Gaza and opposing US military aid for Israel.

If you are a cultural worker: share and discuss the work of Palestinian artists, writers, singers, designers, playwrights, and producers, and discuss the growing movement of cultural boycotts of Israel. See how cultural workers are standing up against this genocide in the art world here.

If you work in other professions: find a way to connect with the real lived experiences of your co-workers, whether that be through working class struggle, struggles against borders (for immigrant and refugee communities especially), anti-racist struggles, and gendered/sexual justice struggles.

2 How To Talk About Palestine In Your Workplace (continued)

Fear of Retaliation

Your supervisor/employer should not retaliate against you for expressing your opinion on this matter. Your legal rights will vary from place to place, so if your job is threatened or if your workplace becomes hostile, document everything and reach out to organizations for resources and legal support as soon as you can. There are many groups you can contact. See page 17.

Calculating Your Words

- Be sure to be clear in your message, however you choose to deliver it.
- Speak your own truth and make that clear when you craft your message. Ask for people to respect your truth preemptively.
- Make sure to be clear about the principles of the Palestinian struggle: it is a global struggle against Zionism as a colonial enterprise/project. While it may seem important to debunk myths such as “this is a fight between Jews and Arabs/Muslims,” it is best to present the principles of the struggle without worrying about those myths and then answering questions as they come up by always going back to the principles.
- Make sure to stress that Palestinians have the right to defend themselves, which is exactly what they are doing, as they are under occupation and subjected to blockade, apartheid, and persecution, not the other way around.
- Do not retract your principles when you receive pushback.
- Be careful about the “two-sided conflict” frame. Words matter and it is important for us to amplify the calls from Palestinians on the ground. Palestinians continuously have made clear that this struggle is not a conflict but a condition of settler colonialism in which there resides an oppressor and oppressed class. In such a context, power is asymmetrical.

- Resistance is justified when people are occupied: we can stick to our principles without going into details about the actors/forms of resistance.
- Steer clear of any responses you feel are attempting to entrap you to say something out of anger.

Crafting Your Message

Example

Step 1: Describe the current situation that has unfolded in Palestine.

As a Palestinian, bearing witness to the ongoing genocide in Gaza as world leaders stand complicit has been overwhelmingly painful. The military attack on Gaza has resulted in an enormous loss of life, with at least 6,000 killed, 22,000 injured, and still thousands trapped under the rubble, their fate unknown. Israel has punitively cut off water, electricity, power, and fuel to Gaza, and forced the displacement of over 1.1 million Palestinians, who have been bombed and killed as they seek shelter in churches, mosques, and hospitals. Medical staff, journalists, human rights workers, and their families have been targeted and killed, as have thousands of children, hundreds who have become orphans and the sole survivors of their families. This is an attempt to annihilate Palestinians and drive them off their land permanently. It is important to remember that Israel colonized Palestine 75 years ago, militarily-occupied Gaza 56 years ago, has kept Gaza under a blockade since 1993 and under a full air, land, and sea siege for the past 17 years. Since the siege was imposed, Israel has waged six major military assaults on Gaza. It is time for Palestinians to one and for all, to attain their full rights and freedom.

Step 2: Describe what it means for you to be speaking up.

Examples

- Your own entry/orientation to the Palestinian cause.
- The courage you feel being based on the resilience of Palestinians in Palestine.
- A sense of responsibility to amplify Palestinian voices and break through the fear of speaking up.
- An expression of vulnerability: the fear, grief, and/or pain you have personally been experiencing as a result of the events.
- The support you have felt as a member of the team in your workplace setting, which is giving you the confidence to raise the topic.
- The isolation you have felt in your workplace setting, which is pushing you to speak up.
- The courage it takes to speak up when Palestinians/advocates for Palestine have been punished for so long and while Palestinians are still being fired from their jobs, silenced, and criminalized for speaking their truth.
- The depth of solidarity communities and individuals have had with us as they are targeted and doxxed for speaking the truth on Palestine.

Step 3: Pitching Your Ask

What do you want from your workspace?

Examples

- Urging your co-workers to join actions, sign petitions, and appeal to their congressional representatives.
- Sharing resources for how to learn more (you can include a link to resources)
- Asking your workspace to consider its constituents who are Arab, Palestinian, and/or Muslim and the various forms of grief, trauma, pain, and exhaustion they might be currently experiencing. Maybe providing them space to reflect on the events, resources for mental health support, time off, etc.
- Asking your workspace to endorse BDS and/or to end complicity in silencing Palestinian narratives.
- Asking your workspace to be aware that Palestinians and their co-strugglers are being silenced for asking for more space and intention for deeper engagement on this issue.
- Think of the power or influence you have and/or your place of work has: this can also be an opportunity to think of long-term strategizing and change, and the first step is to open the door for conversation.

Palestine Through Six Talking Points

1 The Nakba: Dispossession & Refugees

The Zionist state was declared on May 15th, 1948. It was based on the ideology of Zionism, which promoted the belief of a Jewish-only state in historic Palestine. When the state was created, Zionists expelled approximately 750,000 Palestinians. Most of these Palestinians and their descendants have been barred from returning to historic Palestine. There are estimated to be approximately 10 million Palestinian refugees and exiles worldwide. About half of them (5 million) still live as stateless refugees in United Nations refugee camps scattered throughout the surrounding region and within Palestine. Hundreds of thousands of other Palestinians were internally displaced in 1948. Over 500 Palestinian towns, villages, and neighborhoods were destroyed, and over 15,000 Palestinians were massacred in massive ethnic cleansing campaigns in 1948. These events are known to Palestinians as al-Nakba, which means "catastrophe." 78% of historic Palestine was stolen to create the Zionist state. This catastrophe was greenlit and supported by the United Nations. Since 1948, hundreds of thousands of Palestinians have been turned into refugees multiple times due to the Israeli regime's unabated war on Palestinian life, land annexation, and home demolition policies. This ongoing condition is referred to as the Ongoing Nakba, and many are viewing the genocide today as a replication of the original 1948 Nakba.

2 Military Occupation

In June 1967, several Arab states lost a war to the Zionist settler-colonial regime. This resulted in the permanent exodus of some 300,000 Palestinians. The Zionist state seized control of the Egyptian Sinai Peninsula, the Syrian Golan Heights, the Gaza Strip, and the West Bank. Since 1967, Palestinians in the Gaza Strip and West Bank have lived under a military occupation that denies Palestinians their self-determination, freedom of mobility, economic justice, and social, civil, and political rights. In the last 20 years, the occupation has become more violent and polices Palestinians in both the public sphere and private life. In the West Bank, roadblocks, checkpoints, security outposts, and a concrete wall, which is twice as high as the Berlin Wall, limit the ability of Palestinians to freely go to school, work, visit family, seek medical attention, and more. Scores of Palestinians have died at checkpoints unable to seek proper medical attention. Scores of Palestinian women have been forced to give birth to stillborn babies at checkpoints. Palestinians are regularly stopped, frisked, harassed, tormented, beaten, and killed in an extrajudicial fashion by Israeli Occupation Forces (IOF). Meanwhile, the Zionist settler-colonial regime continues to annex more lands in the occupied West Bank and Jerusalem, which displaces Palestinians from their homes, families, and farmlands. The annexed homes and lands are then given to settlers, some of whom have formed lynch mobs that terrorize Palestinians. South African political leaders regard the colonial architecture of the West Bank as comparable to and/or worse than racial apartheid in South Africa.

3 Blockade on the Gaza Strip and the Current Genocide

The Gaza Strip has been under an Israeli blockade since 2006. The Israeli regime has sealed off all borders by land, sea, and sky. This means goods and people cannot enter or leave freely. Since the blockade, Israel has waged dozens of assaults on the Gaza Strip, five of which included massive airstrikes which have devastated land, economic viability, and life (2009, 2012, 2014, 2021, 2022). These assaults have included the direct targeting of critical infrastructure, including water sanitation systems, cemeteries, sewage systems, hospitals, media offices, and more. Thousands of Palestinians have been killed by these wars, approximately half of whom were under the age of 18. For years, Gaza has sustained one of the highest rates of unemployment, mental health crisis, poverty, suicide, and disability in the world. It is the most densely populated place on earth and is often regarded as an open air prison. The current, October 2023, siege reaches the level of genocide in intent and action, as Israel has clearly expressed a racist, violent intention to "clear" the land and expel all Palestinians living in Gaza, about 80% of whom are already displaced by Israeli settler colonialism. After cutting all electricity and access to water, food, and fuel, the Zionist power dropped over 6000 bombs on Gaza in just a few days. These airstrikes included the use of white phosphorus, which are not only against international law, they are designed to cause ongoing and long-term damage and health problems. They have also targeted hospitals, killing scores of people seeking medical aid and shelter. Beyond "killing" and "causing serious bodily and mental harm" to Palestinians, the siege's restrictions also "deliberately inflict on the group conditions of life calculated to bring about its physical destruction in whole or in part," all of which comprise the definition of genocide, according to the UN.

4 Imprisonment

Palestinian leaders are regularly assassinated or imprisoned. Palestinians have one of the highest imprisonment rates in the world. Because they are tried in Israeli military courts, they are denied due process. There is a 99% probability of being found guilty by Zionist regime military courts. Palestinians have long testified to the use of brute and coercive physical, psychological, and sexual torture under Zionist interrogation, which often leads to false concessions. Palestinian children, some as young as five years old, are the highest likely population to be imprisoned in the world.

5 Justice for Palestinians Living in Heartland Palestine

20% of the current population in the state of Israel are Palestinians who either succeeded in remaining close to their homes, or were internally displaced within the Zionist state. Since 1948, they have been discriminated against by the state through over 65 apartheid policies relegating them to third-class citizenship. They are prohibited from entering into certain labor sectors, speaking Arabic as their national language, and even studying the Nakba in the state's education system. Since the start of the Unity Intifada, there has been increasing state and settler violence against Palestinians in the heartland for protesting for their rights and freedom and against genocide. They have risen up alongside Palestinians from other geographies calling for complete decolonization, affirming their belonging to Palestinians who live under occupation in the West Bank, Gaza Strip, in refugee camps across the region, and across the diaspora. Today they continue to be targeted for arrest and are threatened with home seizure.

6 The Role of the U.S.: Censoring Palestine

For too long, Palestinians have been silenced for speaking our truth. The United States has never been an honest broker, but instead has facilitated Palestinian land loss, occupation, death, and dispossession by granting the Zionist regime international immunity and bankrolling the occupation. Academic institutions, corporate media, and now big social media companies are suppressing the narratives of Palestinians, erasing evidence of Israel's human rights violations, and censoring all advocates for justice and freedom in Palestine. Worse, politicians, under pressure from the Israel lobby in the U.S., are continuing to pass legislation that criminalizes free speech concerning freedom and justice in Palestine, often under the banner of "counterterrorism." One of the logics of settler colonialism is to erase the indigenous people: this includes their forcible removal from the land, but it also includes an attack on and erasure of their narratives. Palestine has been erased from world maps, and Palestinian voices, in the homeland and diaspora, are being silenced in order to maintain the status quo. While lies are being propagated about Palestinians in the mainstream, state and tech collusion is deplatforming Palestinian knowledge.
